EDITOR IN DISTRESS

So, you probably noticed I haven't been out to the strip clubs a lot lately. Just like a majority of you, I am also dealing with cash flow issues. Gas prices are on the rise again. Credit cards interest rates are going up and credit limits going down. It's a lot harder to treat your friend to a drink and a dance, but there are some great deals out there. Most clubs offer free or discounted entry during lunch on week days or charge deeply discounted door fees. A few of our advertisers offer free admission if you bring in their ad from our paper. Do it! I won't be upset if you cut up our magazine. It makes us look good when you bring in an ad from our paper. There are also tons of lunch and happy hour specials and I'm not talking cracker and cheese with a Natty Lite.

Even though The Lodge is known for meals that rival many upscale restaurants, they do have quite a few available lunch options for under $12 and I think it's only two bucks to get in during the day. Please don't quote me on that. I'm behind schedule and can't fact check. Nor can afford a fact checker, which I sadly could use. I usually get the $5 fajita plate, which I never finish. These aren't kiddie portions.

Spearmint Rhino has a small but yummy free buffet plus $3 wells and domestic from 11am to 7pm on week days. Besides the buffet they have a regular menu that you can order from also.

Silver City is starting a new free Vegas Style buffet with over forty items this week on Tuesday and Thursday from 11am to 2pm. I'll be checking it out this week along with my favorite dancer Bridget Honeycox. Besides that they do have some regular lunch and dinner deals. Last time I was there I got a calzone that was pretty huge and I only ate half of it. Then I got distracted by Bridget and forgot to take the other half home.

Also, most clubs send email and text specials to their customers, so get on their list.

One of my favorites ways to party on a budget are customer appreciation parties. Usually there will be dollar drinks and free food, which should leave you with plenty of cash to tip the dancers. Oh, and just because the drinks or food maybe free or cheap, doesn't mean you can be cheap and not tip your waitress or server.

Since I've been talking about drink specials and such, I would like to mention a chance for you to not only drink cheap but also raise money for a good cause. My friend Jessika is raising money for her new community center called the Phoenix Project (www.myspace.com/sea_wench) and the Quarter Bar (www.breadwinnerscafe.com) is helping her out this Sunday, June 14th. Buy a $5 wrist band and you will get $2 wells and domestic from 4pm to 2am. There will be free live bands and DJ's with some goodies being raffled off. The Quarter Bar is located at 3301 McKinney Ave., Dallas. -Gi Tha Thrill

Once upon a time, there was a band from Denton. They called themselves BRUTAL JUICE. Their music was psychedelic and heavy and hard. Their singer would make himself bleed and put cigarettes out on himself like some psychotic freak. Someone once mailed him a dead cat, inspiring the title for their LP, Mutilation Makes Identification Difficult (which inspired Old Man Mike, my partner in crime for our 'zine Buzzmonger, to entitle our local band CD Independence Makes Distribution Difficult). They had some modicum of fame when they signed for a one-record deal with a national label and went on several tours opening for bands whose names people sorta recognized. Then they stopped playing together to pursue other interests. But they get together once a year to make old bitches like me trip back in time and remember the days when the metroplex music scene was vibrant and exciting. These pix are from their appearance last Friday at Club Dada. They are still brutal... and juicy!

"Damn Twitter"

So whether it's Ellen Degeneres or P Diddy, millions are following millions' virtual thought balloons 140 characters at a time. It's microblogging and it could be the most brilliant marketing device or completely mind-numbing depending which end you're on.

twitter

The way it works is simple. Get an account, find people, companies, artists, or organizations you want to follow and start receiving little "tweets" of up to 140 characters on your computer or portable device. Ideally, if you were following a company like Hooters' tweets for instance, you'd receive a notification stating something to the effect of, "Don't forget, tomorrow is 2 for 1 wing day!" or if you were following your favorite actor like David Caradine; "In Bangkok filming just got 2 days off, a stack of porn, new belt and a closet with a lock." And that would be that. Little nuggets of information, entertaining and informative letting one another see places they otherwise wouldn't get to see. Twittering is a trip beyond the velvet ropes and well into gray matter.

As to put a neat little bow on the argument that twittering is for twats, a cat, an honest to goodness purring, furry poops in a box CAT has amassed well over 500k followers. Followers who now receive tweets from a cat named Sockington about taking naps, seeing cobwebs and finding places to nap. Even the most avid subscriber of Cat Fancy has to tire at some point after getting the third note of the day stating how much better to have a dog's tongue when grooming the sensitive areas over the rough one that is standard cat equipment. If the trend continues upward then it is another herald of the apocalypse, Paris Hilton will one day be president and we truly are doomed.

Some of the more inane tweets still come from the celebustards that own America's collective mind share these days.

Here are some recent examples. We'll start out with a proper one from Snoop Dog: New Concert: Thu Jul 9 @ Grand Sierra Resort and Casino, Reno - <http://iLike.com/t/7f2W>.

Kirstie Ally gives you another reason to be jealous: "MASSAGE OVER ..very relaxed..I love foot massage the most..desperate for good TV..I love good TV.."

Spencer Pratt proving he's still an insincere duche: "I WANT TO FOLLOW EVERYONE! IM GOING TO GET SOMEONE TO SELECT ALL 182,693 of you!! I NEED TO KNOW WHAT IS ON ALL YOUR MINDS!"

There are fun tweets to be seen and as I dig through the celebrity tweets I've found a few good ones but you wouldn't believe the stuff I had to go through to see a decent post.

The regular guy has some clever things to say more often than not and that makes for a little hope.

Here are five random genius tweets for folks you and I will never meet but through a tweet. They feel like a Stephen Wright routine to me.

"I think hobo vagina is illegal in Ohio. Fish tacos are not."

"i still think 'Lipstick Jungle' sounds like a beastiality movie.."

"John Denver was born on this day in 1943 in Roswell, New Mexico. Wait, Roswell? ...and inability to identify his body in a 1997 plane crash?"

"You know, I'd give my right-arm to be ambidextrous."

"I went to a bookstore and asked the saleswoman where the Self Help section was, she said if she told me it would defeat the purpose."

"Manure is a such a beautiful word for such an ugly thing"

I must admit, I'm tempted to join in on this madness but I can see myself obsessing on how many or how little followers I had and then in turn, compulsively worrying if anyone really cares what color tie I buy or what jail OJ Tobias and I are waiting to get bailed out of. But then again, it could be cheaper than group therapy.

Bret Michaels' Post-Tony Diagnosis: Broken Nose, Bruised Ego

For those about to rock, we recommend investing in a solid health insurance plan.

The damage report is in on Bret Michaels following his literally headbanging performance at last night's Tony Awards, and it looks like the the Poison singer escaped relatively unscathed.

His publicist says X-rays taken after the noggin-knocking incident reveal Michaels suffered a fractured nose to go along with a busted lip that required three stitches. Due to a prior back injury, he will also received a precautionary CAT scan earlier today.

As evidenced in the already infamous YouTube clip, Michaels had just wrapped up his portion of "Nothin' But a Good Time" with the cast of Rock of Ages when the Broadway gods struck. Michaels failed to hit his mark in time and was coldcocked by the scenery.

Report: Lambert Talks About Sex, Drugs, 'Idol'

"American Idol" runner-up Adam Lambert has landed the cover of Rolling Stone magazine, where he talks about sex, drugs and his "Idol" experiences.

The 27-year-old singer from San Diego acknowledges in an interview that he's gay, and says it shouldn't come as a surprise to anyone. Says Lambert: "I'm proud of my sexuality. I embrace it. It's just another part of me."

Lambert says he was inspired to audition for the Fox network singing competition after having a "psychedelic experience" at the Burning Man festival in Nevada.

Lambert says he knew "American Idol" was his "only shot to be taken seriously in the recording industry, because it's fast and broad."

Michael Jackson 'Angry' At 50 London Shows Being Booked

Michael Jackson has hit out at his London O2 Arena gig bookers, saying he believed he only signed up to play 10 shows--not the 50 he is scheduled for--at the venue.

Speaking to fans outside the Los Angeles dance studio where he's rehearsing for the gigs, the singer admitted that he might not be physically well enough to complete all 50 shows, reports Britain's The Sun.

"I don't know how I'm going to do 50 shows," he said of the gigs, which kick off in July. "I'm not a big eater--I need to put some weight on."

The star then laid into the gig promoters, saying he only wanted to play 10 shows at the O2 Arena.

"I'm really angry with them booking me up to do 50 shows," he said. "I only wanted to do 10, and take the tour around the world to other cities, not 50 in one place. I went to bed knowing I sold 10 dates, and woke up to the news I was booked to do 50."

Michael Jackson has already postponed the start of the residency from July 8 to July 13, citing production issues.

Jimi Hendrix's Roadie Says Guitarist's Manager Murdered Him

Jimi Hendrix's former roadie James "Tappy" Wright has claimed that the late guitar legend was murdered by his manager, Michael Jeffrey.

In his new book Rock Roadie, Wright claims that Jeffrey told him he plied Hendrix with pills and alcohol in order to kill him and claim on the guitarist's life insurance.

Hendrix died in September 1970. His body was found in a room at London's Samarkand Hotel booked by Monika Dannemann, whom Hendrix had known for a matter of days.

Jeffrey allegedly made the confession to Wright in 1971, two years before he was killed in a plane crash. Writing of the admission, Wright says: "I can still hear that conversation, see the man I'd known for so much of my life, his face pale, hand clutching at his glass in sudden rage."

Jeffrey is quoted by Wright as telling him: "I was in London the night of Jimi's death and together with some old friends.. we went 'round to Monika's hotel room, got a handful of pills and stuffed them into his mouth...then poured a few bottles of red wine deep into his windpipe."

The manager was allegedly worried that Hendrix was about to sack him. He had recently taken out a life insurance policy worth $2 million, with Jeffrey as beneficiary, reports Britain's Mail On Sunday.

"I had to do it. Jimi was worth much more to me dead than alive," Jeffrey is quoted as telling Wright. "That son of a b*tch was going to leave me. If I lost him, I'd lose everything."

Did I Ever Tell You The One About... And other strange oddities of the world

Cocaine Suitcases Seized in Chile

Police in Chile say they have arrested a woman bound for Spain who was carrying suitcases made from - rather than filled with - cocaine.

Officials pulled the woman aside and decided to search her bags when she acted nervously, reports said. Their suspicions were further aroused when they found the two bags were heavier than their contents.

The black suitcases were made from a mixture of pure cocaine and plastic and each weighed more than 20 kilos (44lb). The cocaine, which was later extracted by authorities using a chemical process, was reported to weigh up to 15 kilos.

Traces Of Cocaine Found In Red Bull In Hong Kong

Hong Kong officials have found traces of cocaine in cans of Red Bull, a few days after Taiwanese authorities confiscated close to 18,000 cases of the popular energy drink.

Officials at the Centre for Food Safety said a laboratory analysis found tiny amounts of the illegal drug in samples of "Red Bull Cola," "Red Bull Sugar-free" and "Red Bull Energy Drink", a spokesman said.

The drink has now been taken off the shelves of major supermarkets, the spokesman said in a statement issued late Monday. He added that the amount of cocaine found in the drinks posed little health danger.

Red Bull moved quickly to deny the findings and said independent tests on the same batch of drinks had found no traces of cocaine. The Centre for Food Safety found traces of cocaine between 0.1 and 0.3 micrograms of the illegal drug per litre, the statement said.

Police: Suspect Fled In Horse Buggy

Sheriff's deputies in Cattaraugus County, N.Y., said a man driving a horse and buggy led them on a three-mile pursuit before escaping on foot.

Deputies said they tried to stop the buggy in Napoli while investigating reports of underage drinking but the driver steered the vehicle through fields and woods before jumping down from the buggy and evading deputies on foot, the Buffalo (N.Y.) News reported Wednesday.

Investigators said deputies were unable to find the driver at the scene but a 20-year-old man was later arrested after deputies brought the horse and buggy to a nearby home.

Mass. Company Lists Cadavers Among Its Assets

A bankrupt Massachusetts medical device maker left behind some gruesome assets when it shut down earlier this year. Innovative Spinal Technologies lists nine human bodies, including "eight previously used" cadavers, among its property in a federal bankruptcy filing. Federal bankruptcy trustee Warren Agin told The Sun Chronicle of Attleboro that the bodies are frozen in the company's former headquarters and do not pose a public health threat.

He said arrangements for proper disposal are being made. The Mansfield-based company made tools for minimally invasive back surgery, and the bodies are kept in an area where doctors were trained to use the devices.

Bear Cub Spotted With Head Stuck In Feeder

It was no honey pot like in "Winnie the Pooh" but a bear cub in Wisconsin was spotted with a bird feeder stuck on its head.

A landowner in the northwestern part of the state told the state Department of Natural Resources about the cub over Memorial Day weekend. But the mother was so protective that DNR officers couldn't get near the cub, who was still able to climb a tree.

When the DNR set out a live trap this week, it caught both the cub and the mom. The feeder was found in pieces next to them, possibly chewed apart by the mom. Both bears were released into the woods.

Beer Run On a Lawn Mower Leads To OUI Charge

A Maine man has been charged with operating under the influence after he and a friend made a beer run on a riding lawn mower.

Trooper Joe Chretien had been flagged down by several motorists warning of a wayward mower and made the arrest after Ross and his friend emerged from a variety store with two cases of beer.

Ross' driver's license had been revoked, so the pair opted for the lawn mower.

Look What The Dog Brought In: US Hand Grenade

A dog out on a walk happened upon a live US grenade from World War II and eagerly delivered it to his master, police said Monday, but authorities were able to defuse the explosive before it went off.

A 40-year-old woman had let the dog off its leash near a stream on a walk Sunday on the outskirts of the town of Erkrath in western Germany's Neander Valley.

The animal found the grenade on the ground, picked it up in its jaws and trotted back to its owner.

"She recognised immediately that it was probably an old, rusted hand grenade," police said. "On the orders of the woman, the dog obediently put his find back next to the stream."

She then alerted the authorities who blocked off the area and dispatched a munitions expert who identified the object as a still live American hand grenade from World War II and defused it.

Laugh Your Ass Off

The Gorilla And The Redneck

A small zoo in West Virginia obtained a very rare species of gorilla. Within a few weeks the gorilla, a female, became very difficult to handle. Upon examination, the veterinarian determined the problem. The gorilla was in heat. To make matters worse, there was no male gorilla available.

Thinking about their problem, the Zoo Keeper thought of Bobby Lee Walton, a redneck part-time worker responsible for cleaning the animal cages. Bobby Lee, like most rednecks, had little sense but possessed ample ability to satisfy a female of any species.

The Zoo Keeper thought they might have a solution. Bobby Lee was approached with a proposition. Would he be willing to mate with the gorilla for $500.00?

Bobby Lee showed some interest, but said he would have to think the matter over carefully. The following day, he announced that he would accept their offer, but only under five conditions:

"First", Bobby Lee said, "I ain't gonna kiss her on the lips." The Keeper quickly agreed to this condition.

"Second", he said, "She must wear a 'Dale Earnhardt Forever' T-Shirt."

The keeper again readily agreed to this condition.

"Third", he said, "you can't never tell no one about this." The keeper again readily agreed to this condition.

"Fourth", Bobby Lee said, "I want all the children raised Southern Baptist." Once again it was agreed.

"And last," Bobby Lee said, "I'll need another week to come up with the $500.00."

You Can't Say That

They always ask at the doctor's office why you are there, and you have to answer in front of others what's wrong and sometimes it is embarrassing.

There's nothing worse than a receptionist who insists you tell her what is wrong with you in a room full of other patients. Many of us have experienced this, and I love the way this old guy handled it.

An 86-year-old man walked into a crowded waiting room and approached the desk. The receptionist said, "Hello, sir. Can you please tell me why you're here to see the doctor today?"

"There's something wrong with my dick," he replied.

The receptionist became irritated and said, "You shouldn't come into a crowded waiting room and say things like that."

"Why not? You asked me what was wrong and I told you," he said.

The receptionist replied, "Now you've caused some embarrassment in this room full of people. You should have said there is something wrong with your ear or something and discussed the problem further with the doctor in private."

The man replied, "You shouldn't ask people questions in a room full of strangers, if the answer could embarrass anyone." The man walked out, waited several minutes and then re-entered.

The receptionist smiled smugly and asked, "Yes?"

"There's something wrong with my ear," he stated.

The receptionist nodded approvingly and smiled, knowing he had taken her advice. "And what is wrong with your ear, sir?"

"I can't pee out of it," he replied.

The waiting room erupted in laughter.

Sobriety Test

A Mountie pulled a car over on the Trans Canada about 2 miles West of Winnipeg. When the Mountie asked the driver why he was speeding, the driver answered that he was a magician and a juggler and he was on his way to Brandon to do a show that night at the Shrine Circus and didn't want to be late.

The Mountie told the driver he was just fascinated by juggling, and if the driver would do a little juggling for him then he wouldn't give him a speeding ticket.

The driver told the Mountie that he had sent all of his equipment on ahead and didn't have anything to juggle.

The Mountie told him that he had some flares in the trunk of his patrol car and asked if he could juggle them.

The juggler stated that he could, so the Mountie got three flares, lit them and handed them to the juggler.

While the man was doing his juggling act, a car pulled in behind the patrol car. A drunk, good old boy, driving through from Alberta got out and watched the performance briefly. He then went over to the patrol car, pulled opened the rear door and then got in.

The Mountie observed him doing this and went over to the patrol car, opened the door and asked the drunk what he thought he was doing.

The drunk then replied to the Mountie: You might as well take me to jail, "Cause there's no bloody way I can pass that test".

BARKIN' OUT LOUD

by Pat "Two Dogs" Snow

else that's a sport requires some kinda object we can bash around, chase, toss, and fight over.

No, I don't consider bicycle riding a sport, I don't care if it's the Euro national pastime or not. I don't consider synchronized swimming a sport, and being in the Olympics is idiotic. No, I don't consider floor dancing a sport. No, I don't consider cheerleading a sport. And no, I don't consider rich guys on horses trying to impress each other with something they call polo, a sport.

What do I call horse racing? I call it horse racing for gambling, not a sport. It's fun, it's fast, it's exciting mostly because of the money, but it's not a sport. Rodeo's a sport but not horse racing.

What do I think of piano competitions being a sport?

Well, I'll tell ya.

I'm Two Dogs. I like the piano lead in with Michael Murphy's "Wildfire", I like Jerry Lee Lewis's "Great Balls of Fire", and saloon style honky tonk. I like finding one of those old wooden floor bars out in the boonies where somebody's put thumb tacks into the piano keys. See, a cold beer, a good cigar, a place to prop your cowboy boots up on and have some knock around old style keyboard beatin', yeah, well, that's for watashi.

But c'mon, you finger wingers, piano playin' just ain't no doggone sport, no matter how you play it.

Would I take my best gal to the Van Cliburn? Doggone straight I would. Why? Because these bonus points will put you in a really great position come Fall when we need time for football, hockey, basketball..... you know, collision sports.

Let's do some high speed.

Did you kick back on the couch this past Saturday and throttle up the Indy Race at Texas Motor Speedway? Doggone good way to pass the time. I got me one of those big screen tv's that's got somethin' like several million little mirrors in it that make HD an even more amazing experience. With those cameras mounted on the cars, man, it was making it like I was sitting right behind the wheel.

During the yellow flags (caution flag slows race down for debris, a wreck, or such), I'd jump up and get a cold one, then hunker back down on the couch for the next blast off.

Man, those cats can do pit stops! You can see how in races that are decided in seconds that the less time you spend on pit row the better it helps you stay with the leaders.

I thought getting four new tires, sometimes different sizes, filled up with gas, and the bugs picked outta your teeth in 7.5 seconds was fantastic, but little did I know. The Penske crew were kicking their guys back out in 6 to 6.5 seconds. That's faster'n I can sneeze three times in a fit.

But the full impact at what I was seein' didn't strike home until the last ten laps. I thought, man, ten laps, this'll be great. Hey, goin' 212 mph on a 1.5 mile track eats ten laps faster'n you can eat ten chicken wings.

I'd take a couple swallows and a lap ud be done. It seems like the leaders were turnin' a lap about every 20 seconds or so. I swear, those ten laps were over in just a few minutes. Great stuff. If you haven't seen one of these Indy open car races, or it's been a while, you need to follow some of this action.

You know, besides the pro circuit stuff at Texas Motor Speedway, we got some great racing locally. Dirt track, drags, that kinda stuff. Over in Grand Prairie the old Yellow Belly drag course is still throwin' smoke down the asphalt. Yes, it occasionally can get a tad rowdy, but mostly it's still just local wheels comin' out for a turn at the burn.

Out by Crandall we got Dallas Raceway. This coming Saturday, 13th, they've got a King of the Hill, qualifying from 7-8 pm and eliminations at 9 pm. On Sunday there's a fun and grudge kickin' off at 2 pm. They got a web site for more info.

NBA - FINALS

So, how'd ya like waitin' from Thursday's Finals Game 1 until Sunday? If you thought last Thursday's Game 1 Lakers blowout of the Magic was boring, the three day wait just about sent people to the fishin' hole. C'mon, NBA, every other day, keep the pace of the game and the attention of the fans pumped.

Ok, Game 2, man, whadda ya say. Orlando loses in OT. Even though they played the Lakers into an OT situation, the question out there is, did the Magic leave it behind them? It don't matter what any of the touts say, Orlando HAS to win all three of its home court games. If they drop even one to LA, the series is over. They win all three, then they go back to LA for Games 6 and 7 and they've made a series out of it. How's that sinking feeling in your gut doin' about now? Basically, Orlando had to come away from LA with a split because winning three in a row from those guys is a horrendous task. The Magic can talk all they want, but unless Miracle on 34th street comes to Florida, this series is over.

How many of you REAL sports guys out there actually knew that there was some kinda big piano contest going on over in Ft. Worth recently?

Probably none of you that are single, and probably all of you with significant others that you need to keep happy. Even if you didn't go, and had no intention of going, at least you said one morning over coffee: hey, what about that Van Cliburn piano competition this year, you interested? Bonus points up the wazzu for that one.

Now, just what the heck is Two Dogs doing bringing this up in a sports column? Well, I'll tell you, I get email on this thing. Demand letters, actually.

Seems there's a handful of radical piano players that think this thing oughta be called a sport since it's such an, in their words, intense competition. They argue that since one of the ways we define sports is by intense competition, they should be included.

Who are piano players? The kids whose mama's kept 'em inside and wouldn't let 'em join us at the playgrounds for flag or tackle football, or hoops or whatnot. Who's the radical piano players? I dunno, probably those kids who wanted to come out but when their mama's said no, they didn't have the hair to sneak out. Maybe their outdoor games were hopscotch and jump rope, who knows? But they're livin' in fantasy land over this issue.

Except for all car racing, gymnastics, swimming, diving, and track and field events, everything

Mixed Martial Arts

Mike Brown vs Urijah Faber #2 for the WEC Featherweight Championship.

Best damn fight I've seen in years. These two men know each other and showed respect, then came out swinging. This was five rounds at five minutes each, with two minutes in-between.

It didn't come out until the end of the fight, but Faber broke his right hand midway through the first. In his words, he lost one of his tools so he had to use his elbows more. That man ain't made of anything but sheer guts.

I'm tellin' ya, it was non-stop action, and it wasn't dancin' action it was slug fest action. It was one of the best mixed martial arts contests I've seen. They're both heavily trained and brought every bit of it to the cage. Leg kicks to slow and set up the opponent, knee kicks to every part of the opponent, including taking a knee all the way up in the air to the others face.

Brown would have Faber down and would be beating him in the face, Faber would roll and get his back to him and Brown would pound him on the side of the head then under his arm to his face. Back and forth. Faber would somehow get free and end back up on his feet and knee Brown in the chin.

To not only dish out but to endure that kind of fight and punishment requires one hell'uva training program, and these guys were the best conditioned athletes I've seen in years, regardless of the sport.

For most regular people, fights are over in just a few minutes. For professional athletes they can last a little longer. Boxers routinely go 10 and 15 rounds. But these studs, they have to use judo or jui jitso holds, knee kick, feet kick, use elbows, forearms, and box. Normally these are three round bouts, five minutes each. That'd wear out just about anybody. The MMA title fights are five rounds at five minutes and when it's a fight like this one, it takes super human endurance and stamina to take it.

What I really liked was that these guys didn't play any games ahead of time. There wasn't any of this face to face, make a sour look crap. They obviously respected each other's abilities and record, and then unleashed Hell. No kid games, no stupid marketing games, just one of the toughest fights I've seen at any level.

I've been waitin' till now to reveal the winner, if you didn't know already, because I wanted to give both these men their due. Brown won a great fight, and it's just too bad we've got to say Faber lost. He didn't reclaim his title, but he helped put on one of the best damn fights in the record books.

Readers Response:

You know, I get all kinds of email that has nothing to do with sports or has some strange take on it. I thought I'd share some of these with you just so's you'd have a better idea of whose driving cars out there. I mean, you're either separated by a six inch white line from the car besides you, or a six inch yellow line from the cars coming at you. After you read some of these you'll probably do what I did: switch to DART.

Dog Barker:

Why is it that S's are Z's? Where is the wisdom of visitors leaving peas? If you said the S's you'd really have: Where is the wissdom of vissitors leaving peess? I like my Z's when I sleep, but they should get the respect for their use. Wizdom, vizitors, and peaz would all be served by Z's.

(TD: I dunno, they'd probably be better than FC Dallas, and score more baskets when they kick the ball.)

Doggies:

Jones is from the Planet Warnow and has spent years fooling people into coming to games. He's finally built the largest spaceship out there, and on national tv is going to kidnap every-one for experiments. You must stop them from going!!

(TD: I could only print a little of this one as it was 9 pages long, all about JJ abducting us unsuspecting fans.)

The above are a small sample of different types of email received. It's rather amazing how many people think aliens are involved with sports and athletes. But, whether the letters are about sports or not, it's clear many people out there are excited about sitting down to a keyboard and expressing themselves.

Let's get to the regular sports stuff.

Two Dogs:

You don't know much about sports, the city, life in general, and I only read you when I'm drunk at a bar. My favorite waitress loves you, which shows her only flaw, but she forces me to read you. I only want you to keep writing so she'll date me.

LB:

Yeah, I know, she wrote me an earlier letter and I recommended she not go out with you. By the way, the photo she sent me, in that micro bikini, was great.
TD

Two Dogs:

I'm hearing talk about how after the Kentucky Derby, jockey Calvin Borel ruined Mine That Bird's shot at the Triple Crown when he agreed to ride Rachel Alexandra at the Preakness, then switched back again to MTB for the Belmont so HE could win the jockey's Triple Crown. Did Borel have a choice of which horse to ride, and would he have chosen rides for his own sake over the horses?

Francoise
Dallas

Francoise:

Jockey's operate as independent contractors, they're not committed to one stable. And, like the rest of us, they don't have a crystal ball telling them which horse is going to win any particular race. They'll make commitments in advance of races, and if something happens to that horse so it's scratched, the jockey is left to scramble for a mount or doesn't get paid. Jockey's are evaluated on number of wins, yeah, but also if they develop a history for bringing certain kinds of horses in. How Borel got on Mine That Bird in the first place was luck of the draw as it was a very late entry, but after that he apparently had a choice to ride Rachel Alexandra for the Preakness. He then was offered to ride MTB for the Belmont and he took it. It's highly doubtful that had he not lost his mount for the Derby that he'd have been on MTB, and who knows what that outcome would've been. Was he "surfing" horses for the best rides to complete a jockey's sweep of the Triple Crown? After the Derby, most probably, yes, but there's no dishonor in that.

TD

Two Dogs:

The NFC North may be more exciting this year than in the past decade, but who's going to have the toughest division in each conference?
Zane
Dallas

Zane:

Tough call. The AFC East with Patriots, Jets, Dolphins, and Bills, then maybe the South with the Texans, Colts, Titans, and Jag's. For the NFC, I think the East with the Cowboys, Giants, Eagles, and Redskins, then probably the South with the Falcons, Panthers, Saints, and Buc's.

The Fast and The Führer: Own Hitler's Car For $7 Million

Expected to fetch at least £5.5million at auction in August, this Auto Union D-type racer is one of the rarest vintage cars in the world – and one of Hitler's favourites.

Driven by the Führer's friend Hans Stuck in the 1939 Grand Prix racing season, it is one of only three D-types known to exist – and was lost behind the Iron Curtain for 50 years.

Hitler was obsessed with motor racing as proof of German technological superiority and the Silver Arrows – as the Mercedes and Auto Union teams were known – utterly dominated the sport in the Thirties. Stuck, originally a hill-climb champion and friend of Hitler's chauffeur, impressed the Nazi leader when they met on a hunt in the mid-Twenties and was protected throughout his career by the acquaintance.

When the Red Army overran Berlin at the end of the war, all Silver Arrows cars were immediately shipped back to the NAMI motor research institute in Moscow to be reverse-engineered: a brutal process that destroyed almost all of them, one being chopped in half to serve as a trailer for an apparatchik's car.

Nobody knew this chassis – number 19 – had survived, until American car enthusiast Paul Karassik tracked it down, adding an original engine from a separate D-type carcass and handing it over to British Silver Arrow specialists Crosthwaite and Gardiner to restore to its original form.

Taiwan Students Invent Power Generating Motorcycle Helmet

Three Taiwan university students have invented a motorcycle helmet that can generate electricity and power a scooter's lights.

Cheng Shiu University outside the south-western city of Kaohsiung announced the invention Friday, saying it plans to find a factory to mass-produce the helmets.

The students fixed five tiny fans that are also generators onto the front of the helmet so that when the motorcycle starts running, wind blow the fans and the fans produce electricity, said Professor Chen Feng-shih, who supervised the invention.

Through a Bluetooth wireless transmitter, the power is sent to the motorbike to power the scooter's front and back lights, brake light and direction indicators.

It can also power a pair of direction indicator and brake lights on the back of the helmet. Four batteries, embedded into the helmet, can store the electricity generated by the fans.

The cost of all the gadgets cost 1,000 Taiwan dollars (30 US dollars), which does not include the cost of the helmet.

'The students are still trying to improve the invention by cutting the size and weight of the fans and using smaller batteries or doing away with the batteries,' Chen said.

Save Ferris: Buy Cameron's House, With Garage, For $2.3 Million

Remember the house Ferris Bueller's buddy Cameron lived in? The one with the awesome, yet precipitously-placed garage housing the 1961 Ferrari 250 GT California in Ferris Bueller's Day Off? Buy it now for just $2.3 million.

Although, to get the 1961 Ferrari 250 GT California included will cost you just a little bit more than that. Still, it's a nice piece of movie history available for anyone with the money to spare and a desire to live in Highland Park, Illinois.

Bomo Baby Carriage is an Infant Toting Robot

The Bomo Baby Carriage is essentially a Room-ba with a seat for a baby on its back. There's no way this'll ever go wrong!

It'll follow you around with the kid in tow, avoiding obstacles as it goes. It can also be set to rock the baby to sleep. But the real brilliance is in manual mode, which lets the kid control his or her own destiny by driving using the pedals and steering wheel. It claims to still avoid obstacles in this mode, but I don't know if it senses the top of the stairs as an obstacle.

In any case, this thing is available direct from Korea for $780, if you feel like trusting your infant in the hands of a soulless robot.

Kikkerland Solar/Hand-Cranked Radio Is Green Inside Out

If you're dreading that annual family camping trip because you need to know the score—or if you just want to have a disco party where there are no electrical outlets—the Kikkerland AM/FM radio is for you.

Although the green radio is solar powered, it comes with a built-in hand-crank for cloudy days and nighttime boogying. Don't worry though—if you're particularly weak, or just lazy, a minute of cranking the $25 Kikkerland will give you half an hour of playback.

Apple To Launch New 'iPhone' With 2x The Memory And Video Camera

Apple is set to launch a new iPhone this week in an attempt to hold off smart phone rivals. The souped-up gadget is expected to have 32GB, twice the amount of current storage memory, and a camera that can take video.

A screen-grab apparently leaked from T-Mobile Netherlands show there are four new models offering 16GB or 32GB of memory in black or white.

The handset is expected to have a 3.2MP camera, compared with the current 2MP camera and a built-in compass.

World's Smallest Microwave That Can Plug Into Your Laptop

It is the world's smallest, portable microwave and can be powered via a link to the USB port on a laptop computer.

The device—called the Beanzawave—has been created in partnership with Heinz to allow workers tied to their desks to create a warm snack, or hot drink, to see them through the day.

To date, the device, which stands just 7.4 inches tall by 6.2 in wide and 5.9 in deep, is only a prototype.

However, experts at the Microwave Association insist the sophisticated miniaturised technology does exist to turn the eye-catching gadget into a reality.

The mini-micro has been designed by microwave expert Gordon Andrews and Stephen Frazer, an authority on industrial design and managing director of Frazer Designers.

Apart from its size, the key breakthrough is the use of a combination of mobile phone radio frequencies to create the heat to cook both on the outside and within in under a minute.

Burning Angel to Launch Magazine
Burning Angel and the Magna Publishing Group have combined forces to launch Burning Angel Magazine, a print publication that will feature pictorials of punk-porn princess Joanna Angel and the girls of BurningAngel.com, music reviews, interviews with celebrities and more.

Burning Angel's self-described "CE-Ho" Joanna Angel is excited to see her company forming its very own magazine. "I really think the world of adult magazines needs a publication that the 18- 30 demographic can appreciate," she said in a statement released to the media. "The BurningAngel magazine will be filled with humorous and sexy editorial, and hot tattooed girls throughout the pages. I am really excited, and I am very thankful that Magna Publishing is taking a chance on this."

The Magna Publishing Group is best known for adult titles such as Swank, Genesis, Fox, Gallery, Velvet, and many other popular adult magazines.

A free Burning Angel sampler DVD will be bundled with each issue of Burning Angel Magazine, where permitted by law.

The premier issue of Burning Angel Magazine will hit newsstands across North America on July 7. Joanna Angel will grace the first issue's cover, which will include an exclusive layout and interview with the popular porn star.

FEELING DIRTY

All About Porn: Releases, News and Stars!

Porn Star Admits Bid for Senate Sounds 'Ludicrous'

Stormy Daniels, the Louisiana-born porn star considering a run for Senate, admits her political ambitions may seem "ludicrous" but insists she's seriously considering a challenge against incumbent Sen. David Vitter.

Daniels, star of such films as "Operating Desert Stormy," started a "listening tour" in Louisiana last month.

She told FOX News on Sunday that she's still trying gauge whether "this is something that I want to do, if I'm capable of doing it." But she said if she makes her run official, she'll do everything in her power to "make it legit."

And she suggested the public interest in her candidacy says more about Vitter than it does about her.

"If I was an outsider looking in, I'd think it sounds ludicrous. It really does," she said. "And I guess the whole thing is that (the public) dislikes David Vitter so much that they think I'm the best person for the job -- then I mean that's kind of scary."

Vitter, a Republican, took a hit when he confessed in 2007 to "a very serious sin in my past," referring to his link to the so-called D.C. Madam. Vitter's telephone number appeared on the old phone records of Pamela Martin and Associates, the prostitution ring run in the nation's capital by Deborah Jeane Palfrey.

Daniels said if nothing else, maybe she'll encourage another candidate to run for Vitter's seat in 2010.

Bing Porn Draws Flak

Microsoft Bing might win fans among porno lovers, but the fact that the new search engine displays raunchy videos in full motion is drawing heat from groups and countries that find such material offensive. The feature could also land Microsoft in legal hot water over possible copyright violations and create headaches for employers.

Unlike Google and most other search engines, Bing's video search feature lets users watch snippets of the videos they find without having to leave the Bing site. That applies equally to videos about, say, gardening and those displaying content that would make denizens of old Times Square blush. Microsoft formally launched Bing last week -- and its failure to block racy video content is already drawing fire. Bing's video search capabilities have been hobbled in China and certain Muslim countries, where the display of explicit sexual content would be considered highly offensive.

The fact that Bing displays video content without redirecting users to the original source could expose Microsoft to copyright suits. Microsoft, Google, and Yahoo have been sued in the past by publishers of adult-themed products over image search results that display still photos from their products.

WoW Farm Factory Pays Russian Porn Star $500,000 For Breast Tattoo

A Russian porn star has been paid $500,000 for tattooing a World of Warcraft farm factory advertisement on her breasts.

The tattoo with the logo and url of MyMMOShop.com, a website selling World of Warcraft Gold goods, will decorate Anna Morgan's breasts for two years, the company said in a press release.

Anna Morgan was born in the city of Zeya in Russia's Far East, and at 19 has a natural DD breast size.

According to MyMMOShop.com's expectations, she is likely to star in 50 to 100 movies per year. The target audience of the movies she appears in is very close to that of WoW Gold, and will burst the website's sales, the press release says.

Amateur Angels 22 Adam & Eve Pictures

Wow, can't believe this series is up Volume 22. Each volume usually show cases up to six new girls looking to break into the porn business, so that means this series has brought us around 130 new delightful Amateur Angels.

This volume's new angels are Jasmine Jolie, Kiara Diane, Pepper Foxxx, Jayme Langford, Chase Taylor and Capri Anderson. They are all hot and I'm not sure who I like the best. So scanning through the scenes once again I have decided to go with the young red head beauty Capri Anderson as my favorite.

The best sex scene is going to go to Capri's girl/girl scene with Jayme Langford. I'm sure the lesbians would enjoy their sexy scene also. There is lots of kissing and caressing. It looks like they really like each and that they are making love, not porn sex. The scene with Capri's leg quivering is hot.

Now I do like hardcore porn sex, so my favorite guy/girl scene is tie between Jasmin Jolie and Pepper Foxxx. Jessamine's was the more energetic, but Pepper Foxxx is a Latin hottie who caused a overflow in my blood circulation.

All the sex scenes were pretty good, but beside the girl/girl scene, none of the other scenes actually made me want to go back and watch over. Nothing disappointing, but nothing great either, so it gets three out five. -GI Tha Thrill

Jack's Big Ass Show 4 Digital Playground

Jack's busy in his playground casting big-ass babes for leading roles in his "music videos". This time he gets Gianna and Naomi to bend over for him. These delicious booty babes will do anything for stardom! The hotties f*ck and suck and bounce their big, beautiful butts for the camera. There's more cushion for the pushin' in this series. "Jack's Big Ass Show 4" also stars Candy Manson, Kapri Styles, and Cassandra Cruz! Anal, titty f*cking, sloppy blow jobs - this volume is all about bountiful asses. It's hot and kinky and Jack's found a new niche!

Mandingo Teen Domination West Coast Productions

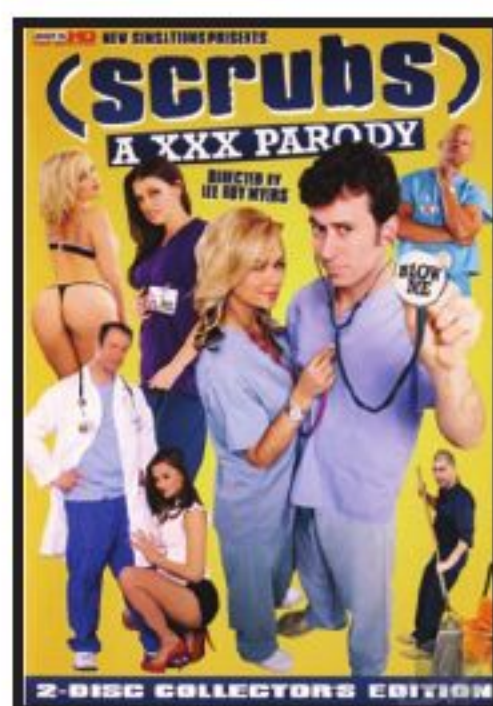

Mandingo has been called a performer who "exudes confidence in his abilities". His movies for West Coast Productions have been hailed as "very serious stroker's material". And the girls that have taken on the undisputed "Biggest Dick in Porn" range from fresh first-timers to some of the biggest and nastiest names in adult. On June 15, West Coast and Mandingo team up again to expose all new over-18s to the severe demands of interracial teen domination.

The June 15 street release of "Mandingo Teen Domination" is packed with Tattoos, Bikinis, Panties, and Teens taking harsh orders and more in the latest interracial DVD from WCP. Starring the famously big Mandingo and a group of naughty teens including: inked up bad girl Faye Runaway, blonde tart Jada Stevens, the Li-Lo look-alike Natasha, spicy Latina Sierra Sanchez and willing Chloe Parker, "Mandingo Teen Domination" will command attention as a knock-out addition to the interracial teen genre.

Scrubs: A XXX Parody New Sensations

There's only one cure for the beautiful female patients of Naked Heart Hospital... a good dose of Penis-illin from Doctor DJ!

When handsome young & hung doctor, DJ sees that the lack of sexual healing amongst the hospital's staff is affecting their work, he realizes that he must come up with a plan to heal everyone of their Acute Bone-itis. At Naked Heart Hospital, laughter and deep penetration are surely the best medicines.

New Sensations proudly presents the hilarious & filthy, Scrubs A XXX Parody. Catch all of the XXX-raying, bodily-fluid-transfusing, pussy-oscopies you can handle!

Musical Mayhem's Travelin' Rock Circus

By: Ms. Misha Moré

The Pretty Things Peep Show have teamed up with Atlanta's The Hot Rods to present the Travelin' Rock n Roll & Burlesque Review.

The Hot Rods are a collaboration of hard knocks, formed back in 2005 when the band decided they could rock harder and louder than the other bands they were seeing perform. Since then they have quickly confirmed their reputation for controlled chaos by consistently performing throughout the Southeast; they have also garnered endorsements from Jack Daniels and Pabst Blue Ribbon. Stage antics are rampant, as The Hot Rods naturally coordinate a live rock, punk and psychobilly.

The band is made up of Mug - Lead Vocals, Turbo - Bass, Clutch - Drums, Vegas Dave - These Guitars, Ready Freddy - Those Guitars. Their new CD "The Hot Rods", produced by Jonny Hibbert is out now and distributed digitally by Universal/Fontana Music Group.

The Pretty Things Peepshow is a vintage style traveling burlesque road show and made up of Suicide girl, burlesque dancer and pin up queen, Bettina May, Suicide/Pin Up Girl, gypsy burlesque starlet go-go Amy, Angelica Insectavara the tattooed sideshow siren extraordinaire from the Coney Island Sideshow. These performers have performed both together and separately all over the world. They have performed in the Vans Warped Tour, OZZFest (with OZZY Osborne) and West Coast Riot/Metal Town Music festivals in Sweden. They have appeared on Television on HBO's Real Sex series, Miami Ink, The Girls Next Door, The Discovery Channel, TLC and VH1.

SEX IN THE NEWZ

Corpse Sex Show Causes Outrage

Gunther von Hagens, who describes himself as a plastinator, arranges human corpses in lifelike poses in his exhibitions.

But his latest project Cycle of Life, which has just opened in Berlin, has been condemned as indecent for portraying two dead bodies as if they were having sex.

A group of cross-party German MPs have called for the work to be withdrawn.

"Love and death are obvious topics for art but I find it quite disgusting to use them in this way," Social Democrat member Fritz Felegentreu told The Guardian.

Alice Stover, a Green party representative, said the installation was "over the top and should not be shown".

Von Hagens defended his piece, insisting it is not intended to be sexually stimulating and the models gave their consent to the pose.

The scientist's technique, which involves removing body fluids and fat from corpses and replacing them with plastic resin, has made him a multi-millionaire.

Shakespearean Sex Shop Causing Stir In Poet's Hometown

It's boil, boil, toil and trouble in Stratford-upon-Avon, hometown to William Shakespeare, after a sex shop received the green light to open for business down the street from the renowned poet's birthplace.

Romeo and Juliet's Adult Boutique will sell toys and pornographic DVDs just 100 yards from where thousands of tourists each year visit the playwright's home.

On May 29 angry community leaders told Great Britain's Sun Magazine the shop, which is set to open its doors June 6, would "degrade" the theater town.

The Rev. Martin Gorick, vicar of Holy Trinity Church, where the Bard of Avon is buried, said: "It depresses me something so seedy will be in such a prominent position. It's a degradation of the environment. It's a very prominent shop in a family area where school kids congregate."

Mayor Jenny Fradgley added that, "It's not the image people want for Stratford."

But shop owner Katie Gilbert insisted she wanted to "honor" Shakespeare with products such as candies shaped like Romeo and Juliet having sex.

"We'll have Shakespeare-style novelty gifts, as well as lingerie and things for bachelor and bachelorette parties," Gilbert told the publication. "Some people are too stuffy about the place. If you look at Shakespeare's plays they were all about sex. I think he'd have approved."

A spokeswoman for the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust said, "We don't have a problem with it as such. Many retailers and restaurants use names associated with Shakespeare. It is no surprise this shop does the same."

Promiscuity: Spread the Love

People who sleep around are called a lot of things. "Warm" is not typically one of them (although another word is quite popular). But sex can mean many things for many people, so who's to judge?

Scientists.

In a study, Patrick and Charlotte Markey of Villanova and Rutgers universities, respectively, explored the interpersonal meaning of sexual promiscuity by charting personality traits against number of bedmates. Dominance upped the numbers—wallflowers stay sidelined—but a stranger statistic popped up. Those who are very warm and those who are very cold get around more than people in between. The pattern holds for both men and women and manifests in number of playpals for acts ranging from sucking face to doing the deed.

The Markeys suggest that cold people may play the field because they avoid serious relationships and the attendant risk of rejection. Or maybe these heart-breakers just want to have as much fun as possible with no regard for the feelings of others.

But not every Casanova is a cad. According to Patrick, "some people might sleep with multiple partners not because they are selfish but because they view sexual activity as an extremely warm activity and want to share it with others."

he actress revealed to New York 'Allure' magazine the secret behind the famous nude clip: "It was anything but glamorous.

"The film is set in the 50s, I couldn't have just had a landing strip! I had to grow the hair down there. But because of years of waxing, as all of us girls know, it doesn't come back quite the way it used to. They even made me a merkin — a wig — because they were so concerned that I might not be able to grow enough."

But the hairstyle certainly didn't put off her co-star, German youngster David Kross (18), during the sex scenes.

The Oscar-winner added: "He didn't need much help..."

And the strange hair pieces wigs don't come cheap — they cost around $200!

News, Rumors and Gossip

A Possible Gay Gubernatorial Candidate In Minnesota

Openly gay state Senator Paul Koering is eyeing the possibility of a run for governor in Minnesota, the Minnesota Independent reported.

Koering, a Republican, told the Pioneer Press last week that he's considering throwing his hat into the contest, after learning that moderate Republican Governor Tim Pawlenty will not run for a third term.

The forty-four-year-old politician said he is "forming an exploratory committee and will be talking to state party leaders, delegates and community leaders to gauge the possibility of a 2010 gubernatorial run."

Amid a heated debate on a state constitutional ban on gay marriage in 2005, Koering fessed up to long-standing rumors about being gay.

A pro-lifer, Koering raised eyebrows in February when he announced he would not support a gay marriage bill, despite having voted against then-State Senator Michele Bachmann's anti gay marriage amendment in 2005.

Whimsical Big Gay Ice Cream Truck Set To Roll

Adding whimsy to gay activism the Big Gay Ice Cream Truck is taking its big gay message to the streets of Manhattan.

"Let's face it, ice cream trucks are kind of queer, and a middle-aged white man driving one is pretty suspect," owner Doug Quint told New York-based food website Serious Eats. "That's not to say that I'm a rolling hotbed of perversion. Hardly the case. It's all in the name of silly."

Quint, a bassoonist by trade who just finished coursework for his musical arts doctorate at CUNY, is a strong advocate for gay marriage. Will an ice cream treat help make a gay visibility message go down a bit smoother in a state where gay marriage finds itself at an impasse in the Senate?

Aside from the campy gay theme, the truck's selection of toppings also aim to get people talking, olive oil, sea salt, Nutella and bacon included. And Quint aims to reach out to customers via the Internet. A Facebook profile has attracted hundreds of followers and Twitter updates (@biggayicecream) will help followers locate the over-the-rainbow truck for a quick queer treat.

Radio Advertisers Run After Transgender Slur

Advertisers for a Sacramento-based radio show are dwindling after its hosts slurred transgender children and called the uproar that followed "a joke."

During the May 28 broadcast of the Rob, Arnie & Dawn in the Morning radio show, which airs on KRXQ in Sacramento, hosts Rob Williams and Arnie States raised the hackles of gay rights groups with comments offered in a segment on transgender children.

"If my son, God forbid, if my son put on a pair of high heels, I would probably hit him with one of my shoes," States said. "I would throw a shoe at him. Because you know what? Boys don't wear high heels. And in my house, they definitely don't wear high heels."

"[T]hey are freaks," Williams said. "They are abnormal. Not because they're girls trapped in boys bodies but because they have a mental disorder that needs to be somehow gotten out of them."

"You got a boy saying, 'I wanna wear dresses.' I'm going to look at him and go, 'You know what? You're a little idiot! You little dumbass! Look, you are a boy! Boys don't wear dresses,'" States said. And about eight minutes later added, "You know, my favorite part about hearing these stories about the kids in high school, who the entire high school caters around, lets the boy wear the dress. I look forward to when they go out into society and society beats them down."

The Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation (GLAAD) demanded an apology from the show's hosts, saying the radio segment promoted "child abuse."

Instead, States defended his comments on the air, called the hubbub that followed "a joke," and insisted he never advocated abuse: "I didn't do anything wrong."

But fleeing advertisers disagreed. According to a GLAAD blog post, ten major advertisers have fled the show including Chipotle Mexican Grill, Snapple, Sonic, Bank of America, Verizon, CKE Restaurants, Wells Fargo, Nissan North America, AT&T and McDonald's.

Controversial Scene Delays BelAmi DVD's U.S., U.K. Distribution

Distribution of the DVD version of European gay adult studio BelAmi's latest title, Sex Buddies 1, was delayed in the U.S. and the U.K. due to a controversial scene involving exclusives — and real-life twin brothers — Milo and Elijah Peters.

According to BelAmi's publicist, "Apparently the scene pushes the boundaries so far that in order to have it pass the [British Board of Film Classification] censors in the U.K. and be distributed in the U.S. [the studio was] forced to re-edit. BelAmi's amorous twins shared a scene together in Sex Buddies 1, and ... well, they just couldn't keep their hands off of each other."

The uninhibited twins said they were only doing what comes naturally.

"If we do it at home anyway, what's wrong with doing it on film?" Milo Peters asked.

Although the "cleaned-up" version is available in both markets now, the only place to see the movie as it originally appeared is online at BelAmiOnline.com. The uncut DVD version is available on the Web, as well, at BuyBelAmi.com.
